Hi, I am Mike Heroux

I enjoy all aspects of creating and using software for scientific research

I especially enjoying exploring the human aspects of creating and using software for scientific discovery

I like to learn about new tools, processes, and strategies that make scientific software developers and teams more effective, efficient, and happier